Telephones For North

Connecting Medium Will Give Isolated Settlements Contact With "Outside"

Many isolated settlements in the vast northwest which not so long ago knew only the dog team and canoe and airplane as their connecting medium with the "outside", will get telephone connections through a transaction completed between Northwest Air Command and Alberta government telephones for extension of service recently established with the Peace River country.

Some of the points to benefit by the new telephone chain include Wagner and Little Smoky in Alberta; Dawson Creek, Pouce Coupe, Fort St. John, Fort Nelson and other repeater stations in British Columbia; and Watson Lake and Whitehorse in the Yukon.

Position Could Be Filled

He was undersized, meek, diffident, subdued and had applied for a job as night watchman.

"Yes, said the manager, eyeing him dubiously, "but the fact is we want someone who is restless and uneasy, especially at night; someone who thinks the worst of everybody and whose suspicions are seldom if ever allayed; someone who sleeps with one eye open always; someone with remarkable hearing, who starts at the slightest sound; someone who is always listening, thinking there are bad characters about. A nice, mild watchman would be of no use to us. We want a large aggressive, intrepid and dangerous person; a good shot, bad-tempered and revengeful, too. The kind of person, in fact, who, when roused, is a find incarnate."

"I'll send the wife around," said the little man. 2835

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

LUKE-WARM TO HOT

By ERNEST MILES

Copyright ©
Wheeler Newspaper Syndicate

USUALLY his behavior was calm and patient, but now Luke Cousins began to fidget and fume as he sat waiting on the bench in the reception room of the Tilson Specialty Company.

"Luke-warm," is what his wife, Janie, sometimes called him, and many times she had said, "Why don't you get hot under the collar sometimes and stand up for your rights?" Well, this was one time he felt like taking her advice.

He was placed in this spot because for more than twelve years he had worked for Belmont's as a salesman and having done a good job was considered one of their best men. It came as a real shock when the Miller people absorbed his old firm and, in spite of his record, notified him his services were being dispensed with along with those of most of his old associates.

That had been three months ago and Luke had not yet been able to find a job. Then this Mr. Tilson had telephoned and made a definite appointment for him to call. The advertisement Luke had answered seemed like the very job he could handle, so, promptly at eleven o'clock as arranged, he had presented himself and taken a seat. Luke had high hopes for an interview which would assure him of being busy again in the work he loved.

Now it was nearing twelve and he was still there, waiting, but resenting more and more the run-around he seemed to be getting. Only the thought of Janie and the baby at home, waiting for some real good news, prevented him from leaving there in a huff.

He snapped out of it when his thoughts were interrupted by the switch-board girl. "Mr. Tilson is very sorry but he is still tied up in a conference. He wants you to be sure and telephone him later this afternoon and he will make a new appointment."

Luke couldn't even answer for he was now choking mad. As he swung out of the office he was not only hot under the collar but in a blaze from head to foot.

Out in the hall he noticed the next door was marked "Private". This would be a good chance to face this guy Tilson and tell him just what he thought of him. Luke barged right into an office where a man was sitting alone, with two beautiful toy dolls on the desk in front of him. These were absorbing his attention.

This made Luke madder than before and he lashed right out. "I'm the fellow you just kept waiting for an hour and then were too busy to—" "But—" the startled man broke in.

"But nothing," raged Luke. "If you're too busy playing with a couple of dolls to keep an appointment you made with me, I can tell you I wouldn't want a job with you even if you offered me the best sales position in the world."

Before the amazed man could say a word, Luke dashed out. Then, like a pricked balloon, his anger died as he realized what he had done. What could he tell Janie and just where would he turn now?

He felt weak and leaned against the wall for support. As he was mopping his brow he was startled by a voice. "Hey, young fellow, come back here and tell me what this is all about."

Sheepishly, Luke followed the man back into the office, slamming. "All right, Mr. Tilson, I was upset after I'd waited so long. So I guess I made a fool of myself. I'm very sorry."

The man studied him, then, smiling, said, "First, I'm not Tilson. My name is Sam Peters, President of the Peters Toy Company. Tilson's office is next door. Now, tell me what made you charge in like a wild steer."

Luke's face was flaming red now as he told his story.

"I would have been hopping mad," said Mr. Peters. "Are you going to telephone Tilson and make that new appointment?"

Luke began to see red again. "No sir, I certainly won't telephone him. I'll just keep on looking and I'll find a job in spite of him."

"That's the old fighting spirit I like. Now let's have a little chat. What sales experience have you had?"

Luke told of his years with Belmont's, the different territories he had covered and the products he had handled.

Mr. Peters listened intently and, with a broad grin, said, "Well, young man, I wouldn't be surprised if you don't have to look any further for that job."

"You mean—"

"That's exactly what I mean. Our post-war plans call for a big expansion program. How would you like the chance of being Assistant Salesmanager of the Peters Toy Company?"

"Oh, boy," grinned Luke, hardly able to remain seated, "that is just the kind of a break I'm looking for. Just tell me when I can start."

"Well, you can come and have lunch with me now and we'll arrange the details, that is, if you can spare the time."

"That suits me fine, Mr. Peters. But may I telephone the good news to Janie first, and tell her what a hot number her Luke-warm husband has turned out to be?"

"Sure go ahead and tell her you're the hottest thing in town."

Pert Young Barrister Found Out Who His Witness Was

There has been some exchange of reminiscence in one of our local ports (writes a correspondent) about the names of well-remembered fishing boats. The skipper of one of them, called into the witness-box of a court of law, was pertly asked by a young barrister, "What are you?" "What am I?" retorted the old seadog in a voice that shook the court. "I'm the master of the Queen of England, that's what I am, young fellow!"—Manchester Guardian.

Stranger In The House

By Paul Nafe In The Louisville, Ky., Courier-Journal

The Truth Is Stranger Than Fiction Department and the How to Make the World Better Division will have to argue their respective claims for this incident.

She lives alone in a neat little cottage at the edge of the city—a good walk from the nearest bus.

One morning she was accosted by a heavy-set man who didn't mince any words about it—he wanted something to eat. She was in a hurry to catch her bus, but in a burst of impetuous good will she said:

"I'll live in that little white cottage off to itself over there. In the refrigerator I have what's left of a pork roast and sweet potatoes. Here's the key . . . you'll find the place in pretty much of a mess—but be sure to help yourself. Then, please just lock up and put the key under the mat on the front porch."

All the way downtown, she was dogged by the thought that she was the prize fool of fools. What would she find when she returned?

Sure enough, there was the key—right where she had asked that it be left, under the mat. But when she opened the door and switched on the lights, she could scarcely believe her eyes: the house had been thoroughly swept and dusted, and everything was in its clean place. Even the windows had been washed. Yes, as expected, there was less food in the refrigerator—but the interior was gleaming with its fresh wash job.

On top in plain view was a roughly written note: "Dear Miss," it began, "you probably will never know what you have done for me. I was paroled a few days ago, and the going hasn't been too easy. But I've got what it takes now. Thanks a million." It was signed merely "Your Friend."

The English word guest stems from hostis, a Latin word meaning enemy.

EVERY EXTRA TURN HAS A MEANING OF ITS OWN!

The average person shifts position thirty-five times during a night's sleep. This is quite normal and healthy.

But how many times do you twist and turn? It is rather difficult to find out—one cannot exactly ask some member of the household to stay up and count! Yet that would tell the story of how normally you sleep.

Restful sleep is not a matter of how tired you are, what kind of a bed you sleep on, which side you sleep on—it is more likely to depend on the state of your nerves.

A common cause of frayed nerves—which result in disturbed sleep—is the caffeine in tea and coffee. If you find caffeine is bothering you—why not switch to Postum? It contains no stimulants of any kind. It has a full-bodied flavor all its own. Form the Postum habit! Make it right in the cup with boiling water or hot milk. Costs less than a cent a serving.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Price Of Homes

It is doubtful, in the history of Coleman, that the prices of homes were so high.

Homes that prior to the war would have sold for $1,000, $1,500 or $2,000 are now practically double and are receiving a strong buying market.

Reason for the upswing in homes today is caused by the scarcity of construction material and labor costs plus the abnormal demand for homes caused by returning war veterans who during their years of service have married and require homes of their own.

The aid which had been expected from the Federal government has failed to materialize and the various strikes which have hit industry since the close of hostilities has served to aggravate the situation. A year after the last shot had been fired in the Pacific, conditions pertaining to the building of homes have shown little improvement.

SUMMERTIME QUIETNESS

Coleman, possibly like a great many other small towns, goes

quietly asleep during the months of July and August. During the past several years the mines have been working steadily, citizens have had a chance to save and each summer they, along with the youngsters, pack up and leave for distant towns and cities where they seek rest and recreation.

To many it is a wonderful experience to go far afield and see where and how the other fellow lives. These vacations have only been made possible by steady work. During the summer months scores of persons are to be seen coming and going and the old town seems almost deserted as no community activity of any consequence can be sponsored with key community workmen absent. On a hot summer's afternoon the town is practically deserted and only the rumble of International tippie can be heard in the silence.

While we desire everyone to have summer vacation this is the time of the year when a reporter has a most difficult time seeking news stories when little, if any, exist. Luckily the Coleman Rodeo carried community activity right through July to keep news stories constantly in the making.

A Message From The President Of Coleman's Board Of Trade

It is my pleasant duty on behalf of the Board of Trade and the Stampede Committee to extend our heartfelt thanks to all who helped make our recent Rodeo such a success. The spirit with which everyone entered into the day's proceedings was very gratifying and has greatly encouraged the Stampede committee to even greater activities in the future. It has been clearly shown that Coleman ranks among the best when it comes to co-operative effort.

The response of the businessmen was all that could be desired. Great demands have been made on them, first a money donation to get things started, windows to decorate, floats to build and finally to close their place of business on a Saturday. To all of these things they cheerfully agreed. The success of August 3rd was due in no small measure to their splendid support.

Credit is due to you citizens of Coleman for the enthusiastic manner in which you turned out and made the day a real gala event. Undoubtedly there were more people in one place, at the same time than ever before in Coleman's history. It is unfortunate that a minority of "gate-crashers," somewhat soured the whole picture—but we must take human nature as we find it. Financially, the day was a little disappointing. Heavy expenses plus a large number of non-paying guests, cut the profit to a minimum. However, when all accounts are in, a financial statement will be presented. This year we will have to be content with establishing the Rodeo and at the same time getting a good day's entertainment.

It is only fair to state that the Board of Trade Executive played a minor role in the organization and management of the day. They were only the sponsors, the real work was done by the Stampede committee and their assistants. These men, who also paid their dollar, deserve the highest praise for their untiring efforts. It is too dangerous to mention names because of the possibility of overlooking some worthy worker. You know who was on the central committee, but do you know of the hundreds of hours of work that they put into this? We owe a debt of gratitude to the Lions for the efficient manner in which they carried out such a tremendous job. The staging of the Carnival, handled so ably by the Elks, called for a great deal of co-ordinated work. The dance committee, publicity committee, ticket sales, parade committee all came through with flying colors. We are proud of our pipe band and the generous way in which they supported us. Those unsung heroes who labored so long in constructing the corrals and the boys who helped handle stock during the show all deserve a big hand from the town. These are only a few of the branches of the organization, to those who have not been mentioned, but we still have them in mind and are not forgetful of their contributions.

The flaws that appeared this year should be patched up in the future. There was too much thrown on the shoulders of the willing few. Next year the work should be more evenly distributed among the many. And for the critical few because of the lack of fences and bleachers, we can only say, "We will see you up at the field next June and July." Again everyone, please accept the thanks of the Board of Trade for a big job well done.

Legion Members And Families Enjoyed Picnic

A very enjoyable time was spent by the members of the Coleman Legion and Ladies Auxiliary, BESL Transportation was provided by the McGillivray Creek Coal & Coke Co. Ltd., and Wm. Martland.

The party left the Legion hall at 10 a.m. Sunday morning and proceeded to Knowles' Ranch, where in the shelter of the trees and the beautiful surroundings they had a wonderful time.

The day's outstanding feature was the horse shoe tournament. Great things had been expected from R. McPherson but it was just not his day. Races were held for the children, followed by a softball game. Harry Drew would not do for big league baseball. Everybody had soft drinks, ice cream, peanuts and all the oranges they could eat. Wieners, buns and coffee were provided by the ladies.

At 7 p.m. the Legionaires gathered together for a sing song under the direction of Harry Drew. This brought to a close a very enjoyable day and at 8 p.m. a tired but happy picnic party were all taken home.

One of the guest artists during the day was Alan Kostelnik who played several selections on his accordion.

The Legion expresses its appreciation to Bud and Buck for the use of their car.

THEATRE NOTES

Jennifer Jones Goes Madcap in Her First Comedy Role

Riding pell-mell through an English village on the handlebars of a messenger boy's bicycle is not the way moviegoers think of serious-minded Jennifer Jones, so long associated with her academy-award portrayal of the visionary "Bernadette." But, with a mob-cap on her head and a wrench, in her hand, Jennifer is cutting capers as an uninhibited, irrepressible parlor maid with a yen to be a lady plumber. She is "Cluny" in Ernest Lubitsch's sprightly film version of Margery Sharp's rollicking best-seller, "Cluny Brown," in which she is starred with Charles Boyer, and which opens tonight at the Palace theatre.

"Cluny" is unpredictable and so is Jennifer. She is certain to shock her fans when they get their initial glimpse of her totting an English journeyman plumber's kit to fix Reginald Gardiner's faulty sink—to say nothing of when she gets a little tipsy and imitates a Persian cat for her screen vis-a-vis Boyer.

A Pattern For Peace

FOR MANY YEARS the undefended border between Canada and the United States has stood as an example to the world of the manner in which nations can live peacefully side by side if both have the will to do so. Over a hundred years have passed since there has been any grave dispute between these two countries and as time passes the possibility of serious trouble arising becomes increasingly remote. During the war a joint plan of defense was set up for the protection of this part of the world against possible enemy attack, and had such an attack come there would have been complete co-operation in combating it, no matter which nation was most vitally concerned. Had Western Europe been similarly united before 1939, the history of the last seven years might have been quite different.

Is A Help To World Court

Mr. John E. Read of Ottawa, one of the fifteen judges of the new World Court of the United Nations, and formerly Canadian representative on the International Joint Commission, who returned from the Hague a short time ago, commented on this matter in a recent press interview. He stated that arbitration precedents set by the United States and Canada during their long history as peaceful neighbors are one of the most important contributions to the working of the new world court. He added that the court also benefited from the experience of the International Joint Commission of Canada and the United States which he termed "probably the most successful international tribunal ever established anywhere in the world." He is gratified to know that such a precedent has been set here, and it is to be hoped that it may contribute to the working out of a plan for permanent world peace.

An Example Set For Others

What has been accomplished here should not be impossible for all nations. It must be acknowledged that there are certain extremely favorable factors involved in the relationship between the United States and Canada. There is a common language in both countries and the predominant racial strains in both countries are similar. There are, however, memories of the American Revolution and the war of 1812, both of which are not so far in the past as to be completely forgotten. Yet from these, very little, if any, bitterness has remained. At this time, when the world is facing a new era in which many practices and institutions of the past must be discarded, it would be encouraging if the foundations, at last, of any enduring peace between nations could be laid. To do this, the Old World may have to look to the pattern set by the United States and Canada and we may be proud that we have been able to provide this example of peaceful living for others to follow.

Is Best Way To Get Along In These

In the face of all warnings about the atomic threat to our existing civilization, about the threat to the survival of the human race, people retain their pre-war curiosity about the extinct civilizations of the Egyptians and the Mayans. It is only fair to keep such things in mind when a person is tempted to ask in this atomic age, when mankind may be standing on the verge of destruction, how can there be long nylon queues before the shops, how can there be such public interest in the new beach costumes, how can there be such enormous crowds at the race tracks, how can a bouncing new baseball civilization be rearing its head in Mexico?

Higher interests than nylons and parimutuels and baseball persist in the face of the atomic peril. Scientific expeditions persist. Toscanini conducts in Milan arouse interest. Nation-wide campaigns for the conquest of disease persist. In other words, it is not true that humanity does nothing but dance on the edge of the abyss, as we are accustomed to say after historic catastrophes, like the one from which we are just emerging. A great many people do other things than dance on the edge of the abyss. They work, study, explore, invent, dedicate themselves to high aims and great causes which take for granted the survival of the human race and the persistence of civilization.

Sometimes the thought occurs that the greater the vehemence with which the atomic threat is publicized and the nearer to the edge of destruction humanity is depicted, the more inclined most people will be to turn to their normal occupations. A threat may become so dire as to produce the feeling that there is nothing to be done about it and the best thing is to attend to the daily job. — New York Times

Offers Big Chance

Household Economies Course Pays Way To Highest Paid Fields

Most people picture a dietitian sitting behind a desk trying to decide whether today's menu should feature French fried or parsley potatoes. But according to Margaret E. Anderson, head dietitian for Toronto's Robert Simpson Co., Ltd., this is far from the truth. "Being a dietitian is not a glamorous job," she emphasizes, "but it is an absorbing one, offering a chance to travel and work in interesting places such as summer hotels, hospitals, large stores, restaurants and factories."

An ideal field for women, a dietitian always is well paid and if she is exceptional, can make $10,000 a year.

She works hard for her money and, although a career girl, is beset with the problems of an ordinary housewife. She too worries about rationing, price ceilings and latest orders from the Wartime Prices and Trade Board in addition to her special worries about food shortage and the difficulties in obtaining heavy kitchen equipment.

Entry into this field comes after a degree in household economics which may be a four or five year course depending on the university. Then the dietitian still has an extra six months to a year training, either studying special diets in a hospital or normal diets in a commercial course.

Miss Anderson is responsible for the operation of some eight restaurants and food services in a store in addition to special catering for weddings, teas, banquets and small dinners.

It's long arduous training, Miss Anderson points out, but it is a job a dietitian who marries can carry on in her home. Her training cannot fail to produce a better homemaker.

BECOMING MODERN

Even Ancient Tower Of London Is Conforming With Times

Even dusty history cannot keep progress outside the old grey walls of the Tower of London and today the world's grimmest and most famous fortress is beginning to conform with the times.

People of morbid inclination who visited the Tower before the war heard blood-curdling commentaries delivered with ghoulish jollity by old men whiskered and dressed as yeomen of the guard.

... and then the 'cadsman' took 'old' of this 'ere chopper and brought it down with a rare old wallop. And the 'cad' popped off like a blunderbuss cork!"

Adults shivered while children gaped and the old warden collected a handful of pennies in return for the full detail supplied.

Today these whimsical anecdotes are gone from the Tower and in their stead is a new type of yeoman—youthful, trim, and friendly, with college-trained voices and a fund of history and archaeology at their finger-tips.

Their language still is colorful and is peppered with up-to-date slang. School children listen open-mouthed to hair-raising tales of last-minute escapes, of bloody executions, and thrilling sieges. But the stories are interwoven with authoritative information about arches and armory, with explanations of why such things happened and of historical trends that led up to them.

There now are 50 yeoman warders in the Tower. They have free quarters, their own club and bowling green, and a small pension which, in line with progress, is to be increased soon. Their job is to guide tourists and police the Tower.

The Tower's biggest attraction, the Crown Jewels, is expected back next August and with them the keeper of the crown jewels. Meanwhile, the white Tower with its glittering armories remains the biggest "draw." There are "ghosts," of course, and the star performer, according to the wardens, is still—and will always be — Ann Boleyn.

Non-Stirring Paint

May Be Available Within A Few Years

Paints which do not require stirring before use may be available to householders within a few years, as the result of research underway by British scientists.

Reporting the development, Canadian Paint & Varnish Magazine says that "the elements making this new non-stir paint possible are said to be recovered from the sludge of crude oil after gasoline, paraffin and valuable chemicals have been extracted." The magazine adds that a new plant will have to be erected before the paint can be manufactured on any large scale.

In the meantime, the advice of all paint manufacturers to users of their products continues to be "Stir the paint until it is thoroughly mixed before using."

Everything New

May Be Delectable But It Means Sacrificing Cherished Things

It is an idea that grips the imagination, this plan of the British to take $76,000,000 and build an entire new town. Some 50,000 persons would make up the population. They would be starting life over, where everything was new and clean. The beginning would be parks, of course, then community centres, nurseries, modern medical and health facilities, schools, churches, good housing, industrial and business life conveniently arranged.

Some of these towns at least would be built in the outskirts of London, not more than thirty miles away. They would reduce congestion in London and, at the same time, attempt to revive some of the spirit and mode of life of the English village of the seventeenth and eighteenth century. This is an aim of the Minister of Health, Aneurin Bevan, who recalls that in that day people of different stations in life lived together in the same streets.

A curious phenomenon of human nature is revealed here. When ever we begin to think of doing something new we invariably think at once of something old that we cherish.

E. V. Knox once tried to put in words the charm of the English village. "It was set in its hollow under the hill," he wrote of one of these, "so grouped about its church, had so many timbered cottages, so perfect a green, so fine progress came along. The town ate up the village, or as Knox put it, 'a herd of wild hungarians had trampled it down; it had been savaged by an arterial road, and devastated by petrol pumps. In the ruins, like a pelican in a wilderness, stood a roadhouse with a swimming pool.'" New York Times.

Health LEAGUE OF CANADA presents TOPICS OF VITAL INTEREST

SYMPTOMS OF CANCER

Here are some of the facts the public should know: Cancer kills more than 33 Canadians every day and that not only the old are the victims. It will surprise many to know that more children from 5 to 19 years of age die each year from cancer than from the following combined: scarlet fever, infantile paralysis, typhoid, peritonitis, diphtheria, etc. It is perhaps a little better known that one out of eight people over 40 years of age die of cancer.

Ignorance or fear based on ignorance has always been one of the biggest obstacles in the path of progress. So it has been with cancer. While some of the greatest minds in the world are working on research problems which may determine a way to prevent it, millions of people through fear, ignorance, superstition, are failing to go to competent medical authorities until the disease has passed beyond the stage where it can be cured. Many are falling into the hands of quacks and givers. It is important that the public should know the signs of cancer. X-rays and radium are the only approved treatments for cancer.

The public must be taught to know the possible symptoms and then not to be afraid of going to a doctor, but to go to hope, knowing that early detection will bring a cure. The following are the signs which may mean cancer:

1. DO NOT NEGLECT any mass, lump, swelling or hardness on the face, neck, lip, tongue, in the mouth, in the breast or elsewhere in the body.
2. An ulcer, sore or cracked lip which does not heal within a month demands attention.
3. Any unnatural bleeding is a sign.
4. Attend to a wart or mole that starts to increase rapidly.
5. Hoarseness which persists past the duration of a common cold may be serious.
6. Difficulty in swallowing your food or indigestion which develops after the age of 40 requires investigation and probably X-ray examination.
7. DO NOT WAIT for pain. Pain is a late symptom.

Safe Helicopters Being Built By Firms In Britain

LONDON.—British aircraft firms are constructing a helicopter of a new design. This late British helicopter attempts to overcome the helicopter's worst defect—its temporary helplessness if the engine fails during flight.

If the engine should stop, a relatively large change in the pitch of the blades would be necessary. As control is derived solely from the tilting of the rotor, the pilot has no control during the period in which the pitch is being changed and the rotor is beginning to pick up momentum through the pressure of the air as the helicopter sinks.

There is thus a critical interval in which both lift and control are likely to be lost.

The Bristol Co. and the Fairey Co. are making new designs aimed at modifying the fault of helicopter wings.

Though still capable of the manipulation necessary for hovering and going forward, backward the only means of thrust.

For a purpose of forward speed there would be a separate form of power applied, either through a familiar disc or through the rotation of a jet.

This will be a gyrodyne, not a true helicopter, and should have certain practical recommendations.

For example, it should allow the pitch of the blades to be notably diminished in forward flight, thereby lessening the critical interval following engine failure in the true helicopter.

It should also improve the helicopter's speed which is usually poor because the rotor's dual purpose makes it relatively inefficient in obtaining thrust.—Chicago Sun.

BUILDING BOOM

Cuba's Needed Facilities For Tourists Are Being Provided

HAVANA.—A major building boom and the greatest public works program ever undertaken by Cuba, now in full swing, will open up large areas of the interior of this island to tourist travel and provide many needed facilities for visitors.

The once languid tropical days are filled with the chatter of air-pumpers breaking up worn pavements, the noise of blasting, the rumble of bulldozers, trucks and cement mixers. Down near the waterfront in the huge old Public Works Building, hundreds of young engineers and architects are working long hours on drawings and specifications.

Buildings are being torn down to make way for new streets and to widen avenues, pavements are laid, parks reconstructed and new ones planned, roads and bridges built, hospitals, schools, prisons and other public buildings erected. Private capital, at last awakened to the possibilities of the tourists trade, is organizing companies, drawing plans and starting construction of hotels, beach developments and other recreation centers.

The tide of post-war travel to Cuba has already begun. During the past few months an average of 20,000 visitors a month have reached the island by air. When steamship service is resumed next fall many thousands more are expected. In addition to the regular steamship lines a new ferry, built specially for the transportation of automobiles and passengers, will operate between Key West and Havana.

The fare—$3 for one passenger, $20 for an automobile and four passengers—are below present rates and will undoubtedly increase the number of tourists coming to Havana. Later, these ferries will connect Cuba with Mexico as the water link in the Pan American Highway System.

Personalized Service

Broadcasts Within Sound Field Is New Idea For Radio

Room-trapped radios promise to become the electronic engineer's answer to complaining neighbors. A Westinghouse Electric researcher sees "personalized radio broadcast service" growing out of new developments in radio frequencies. His idea: Electronic plates fastened to opposite walls of a room would enable listeners sitting between to hear the radio. But the broadcast would not be audible outside the sound field between the two plates. Non-radio-fan members of a family could have peace and quiet by staying away from the listening area. Hotels and apartment houses would be a good market for such devices.—Wall Street Journal.

OBSERVATION KITES

In the era of atomic bombs, Germany's war makers found use for the kite. U. S. Commerce department investigators described the German kite as a 180-pound affair carrying one man. It was set aloft by trailing from a submarine and kept in the air by wind action on autogyro type blades attached to it. The Germans developed it for observing enemy action. They made 200.

KNOWN BY APPLAUSE, SPECTRA OF STARS

Blind Pianist Could Name Any Country Where She Plays

It is reported that Mary Munn, the blind, Montreal-born pianist, could play in almost any country, without being told what country it is, and name it by the applause. In Canada, for instance, some person or persons in the audience invariably whistle, a Toronto Telegram columnist reports. In Budapest, orchestras make a great row by whistling the backs of their instruments. In France "Bravo" is the approval signal and in practically all parts of Europe laurel wreaths are presented to visiting artists rather than bouquets. Miss Munn has a repertoire of some 1,500 musical scores—all memorized. If she had to carry her music around, she says it would take a couple of box cars to transport the music in Braille.

Planets Studied With Infra-Red Spectrograph

An infra-red spectrograph, which uses light waves twice as long as those visible to the unaided eye in photographing the spectra of stars and planets, has been installed by Dr. Otto Struve (University of Chicago) in the McDonald Observatory of the University of Texas. The instrument has revealed additional bands of carbon dioxide in the spectrum of the planet Venus and methane in the spectrum of Jupiter. Exposures of several hours' duration can be made in full daylight, because the blue light of the sky is scattered but not the red wave lengths. Daylight photography enormously increases the efficiency of telescopes. The invisible infra-red radiation is focused by means of mirrors and a grating plated with a thin coating of gold. Infra-red researches will be continued indefinitely at McDonald Observatory and may be extended to still longer wave lengths.

NEW FABRIC

Satin Material Glitters In Dark Like Luminous Watch Face

If the British Board of Trade and other Government Department listen to the pleadings of the British fashion designers, to use some of the materials developed by scientists during the war, women should have some fun with their new clothes in the next 12 months. There is one fabric, a satin material which technicians call "photoluminescent". It glitters in the dark with the same ghostly glow as a luminous watch face. It was employed to cover the landing paddies used at night on aircraft carriers. The fabrics made of plastics for use in equatorial war zones will give designers enormous scope. One material, used by Britain's Royal Air Force for rust-proof insect screening, should be popular for office suits for ink, grease or stains can be removed without blemish with a damp cloth.

SINGING INSECTS

Sound Detector Picks Up Notes Inaudible To Human Ear

Prof. W. H. Pilemeier writes in The Journal of the Acoustical Society of America of a sound detector which responds to notes that human ears cannot hear. With it he made some interesting discoveries about insects. It turned out that at least three species of small meadow grasshoppers (fasciatus, gracillanus and strictus) produce intense sounds of very high pitch.

"The scarcely audible song, even at two feet, of Conocephalus fasciatus and Conocephalus gracillanus is zip, zip, zip, zee-zee and that of Conocephalus strictus is sssss, sometimes continued for a minute without pause," says Pilemeier.

How do grasshoppers sing so loudly, yet so inaudibly? The male meadow grasshopper has a file under the left wing and a scraper pointing upward at the inner edge of the right wing. To make a sound the insect rubs the scraper on the file.

Diamond Market Has Returned To Belgium

ANTWERP.—Half of the world's diamond industry has returned to this historic European trading centre in the year since the end of hostilities in Europe.

Control of the world diamond market has been centred in the dimly lit little offices and shops in Antwerp for 500 years, but the war scattered the industry to the four corners of the earth. Merchants in Canada, the United States, Palestine, and Brazil grasped feverishly for the market during the war years, but it came home to Antwerp again—and quickly.

During 1945, even though half the year was crippled by war, Antwerp exported almost $20,000,000 in diamonds. During the first two months of 1946 almost half of that value was exported, mostly to the United States.

"It is the cutting and polishing that counts," says Albert Rudelsheim, general manager of the Belgian diamond industry syndicate. "The diamond cutters in Palestine or South America may have two or three years experience but in Belgium it is a closed industry, passing down from father to son. Our diamond cutters profit from 500 years of experience."

"Diamonds have character," says Juda Polak, secretary of the syndicate, to which every diamond merchant in Belgium belongs. "It takes a man who understands diamonds to bring out that character."

Diamond cutters and polishers in Belgium make from 2,000 to 4,000 francs a week (about $40 to $80) which is about twice the average wage in the country.

There has never been a strike in all these 500 years," Polak says. The industry is controlled by a national commission of workers and merchants. Any differences that might arise is settled amicably by this body.

VERY DEMOCRATIC

No Rank Is Indicated On Uniforms

A completely democratic feeling prevails in the Women's Voluntary Services of Britain, their leader, Lady Reading, stated in an interview in New York. Lady Reading stated that there are no indications of rank on the uniforms and everyone wears the same type of hat. "My secretary, my cook and I all wear the same uniform. But we encourage everyone to wear the hat differently to suit the individual differences of personality." Lady Reading related how one time when she walked into a W.V.S. centre in northern England and asked if there was anything she could do to help, she was directed to carry 75 mugs into the kitchen. When she asked if there was anything else to do, she was directed to "wash up." She was further advised to take off her jacket. "I am so fat that when I take off my jacket my blouse and skirt don't meet, but I did not dare disobey," Lady Reading recounted. "Then an elbow dug me in the ribs and I was told, 'You say you come from London. Aren't you grand? Next thing you will be saying you know Lady Reading!'"

JUVENILE CRIME

Australia's Wave Of Lawlessness Recalls Days Of Pushes Rule

SYDNEY, Australia.—A wave of lawlessness is now sweeping Australia with every form of crime from petty pilfering and burglary to armed hold-ups and brutal brawlings reported in increasing numbers in the cities.

Police attribute much of the crime increase to youths, often assisted by girls. Their statistics show that 70 per cent of first offenders are under 21, and that more crimes are committed by youths and girls between the ages of 15 and 25 than by men and women in any other 10-year age group.

The present juvenile crime wave recalls the days of the "organized" "Pushes" gangs of up to 20 youths, who terrorized Sydney 50 years ago.

The Pushes had 6,000 members in their heyday and they ran the gamut of crime from murder and assault to petty pilfering. For nearly 20 years, they waged undeclared war on police, and often the blue helmets and leather truncheons of the police had to give way to the stones and pickets of Push members in pitched battles.

Each Push was well organized and luridly named. One was called "The Rocks" and another the "Blood Red", but each had a head known as a "king", who gave orders and exacted strictest obedience on pain of torture.

Often, Pushes kicked a man or woman to death, and another favored form of assault was the "sock". In this, the victim was stripped, bound face down, beaten raw with stockings filled with wet sand, rubbed down with salt, and kept in custody until the wounds healed.

The Pushes flourished until the beginning of the century when police were armed with revolvers and flinging was authorized as a legal punishment for violent crime.

RETAILERS make constant use of banking services. In some cases these are simple but essential; the bank takes cash receipts on deposit, makes change, operates current accounts, and accepts and records used ration coupons. Other retail accounts involve considerable handling of drafts, and—a very important service—the making of loans to enable retailers to take advantage of trade discounts. All this entails Banking in Action.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce has among its customers many retail houses, from the small corner store to the large chain and department store. Strict attention to their particular needs is given to all the Bank's customers.

Use our services for your banking requirements, whatever they may be. Consult our local Manager.
